Dining

Restaurant Dining

Centrally located in the Village at Paws Up, the Cook Shack features The Resort’s culinary headquarters, with two stellar restaurants and The Resort’s full-service bar.

- Pomp, The Resort’s gourmet restaurant, offers continental cuisine with a Western flair for dinner. Grounded in the fundamentals of classic cooking, our Senior Executive Chef Sunny Jin (a veteran of The French Laundry and El Bulli) uses his background and imagination to create mouthwatering culinary innovations. Local ingredients are featured, so offerings change just like the seasons.
- Trough features a more casual menu and atmosphere for breakfast, lunch and dinner. Tank provides a wide selection of the finest drink selections in the West and a casual environment complete with flat-screen TVs, music, breathtaking views and a spectacular fireplace. Tank & Trough is the perfect place to unwind and reconnect after a day full of adventure.

Outdoor Dining

Camp Dining

For guests staying in any of the six luxury camps at Paws Up, breakfast and dinner are served daily in each camp's Dining Pavilion. (Lunch is served at Trough, Paws Up's casual restaurant located in the Cook Shack.) Each luxury camp has its own talented chef, who caringly prepares breakfast and dinner at the Dining Pavilion. Our summer program Campfire Chefs brings in guest chefs from around the world to cook at our camps, including award winners and finalists and culinary TV show contestants. The chefs prepare sizzling, show-stopping meals right in front of the guests and take haute grilling to a whole new level.

Chuck Wagon

Throughout the summer months, guests can step aboard an old-fashioned hay wagon and enjoy a relaxing ride to the banks of the Blackfoot River for an Old West-inspired chuck wagon dinner. The menu ranges from all-natural chicken, Angus prime rib, fresh corn and asparagus grilled over a campfire to scrumptious classics like baked beans and fresh-fruit cobbler warmed in Dutch ovens. Guests can enhance their authentic Montana experience by pitching horseshoes and enjoying the talents of local musicians and a cowboy poet.

Shed[®]

Shed started as a food truck on the edge of the forest here at Paws Up—a wood-fired pizza joint, gastro eatery and roadside smoke trailer all in one. This pop-up for live-fire cuisine became such a popular gathering place that we decided to make it a permanent fixture, designed by cutting-edge architect Kristen Becker of Seattle's Mutuus Studio. At Shed, you'll find quesadillas, chili, garlic bread and more. The chefs also prepare sandwiches, elote (grilled corn) and seasonal veggies. In the smoker, cauliflower burnt ends, wings and sausages with cornbread await foodies. A variety of fresh salads and sides are also available as is a plethora of yummy deserts.

Paws Up Rodeo Dinners

Because we house Montana's premier equestrian center—the Saddle Club at Paws Up—you have an opportunity for a dinner experience that typically rates five horseshoes. Kick things off in the arena with rodeo events chosen just for your group, like roping and barrel racing. There's room for up to 200 spectators, and VIPs can be seated in the Sky Box suite with a fully stocked bar. As the rodeo activities wind down, a feast awaits outdoors near a calm pond, where you can take a canoe ride after dinner and enjoy perhaps the most moving sunset you've ever seen.

The Yard at the Cook Shack

For a crowd-pleasing, down-home meal in the heart of our Ranch Village, The Yard at the Cook Shack provides a magnificent setting throughout the summer. Imagine posing for quintessential Montana photos against the backdrop of the Garnet Mountains, playing pickup games of horseshoes and cornhole, watching world-class chefs serve up mouthwatering cuisine at action stations and then sitting down to dine in picturesque dining pods. Add a built-in stage for live entertainment, and you have the makings of a wondrous evening.

Private Dinner Options

If you or your family members are celebrating a special occasion, feel free to indulge in a private dinner in one of our authentic and charming venues. From the Bunkhouse to the Bull Barn, Tack Room and Island Lodge, The Resort can accommodate your requests and organize a special get-together that the person (or persons) of honor won't forget anytime soon.

Room Service

For guests staying in a luxury home at Paws Up, in-home dining is also available, served in the comfort of the guests' own accommodations. Many of the same menu items available at our restaurants Trough and Pomp can be delivered, or a private chef can create a custom meal for an exclusive in-home dining experience.

Grizzly Gourmet Pizza Delivery

For all luxury home accommodations, The Resort at Paws Up offers pizza delivery, along with salads, sides and desserts—all lovingly prepared on property. (Pizza delivery is included in the Paws Up meal plan.)

Spa Town

Discretely nestled on the edge of an expansive meadow sits Spa Town® at Paws Up, a colony of pristine white tents (with full baths and heated massage tables) stitched together by a wooden boardwalk. Services include massages, classes and treatments for children, full-body treatments, treatment enhancements and wellness classes, including a full selection of yoga offerings. Spa Town gives new meaning to “getting lost” in the woods. (During the winter months our spa migrates indoors to a new spa location inside the world-class Paws Up Saddle Club.)

Ownership

The Resort at Paws Up opened in 2005 and is privately owned by the Lipson family.

Arriving from Colorado, businessman Dave Lipson and his wife Nadine Lipson, together with Dave's son Laurence Lipson, founded Paws Up Ranch LLC in 1997. The Lipsons brought with them a herd of superior horses, the desire to build a first-class Black Angus seed stock operation and their beloved ranch name. The name "Paws Up" was originally inspired by those friendly, wriggling dogs who greet visitors by putting their paws up in the air while their tails thump the floor a mile a minute.

Paws Up Ranch is an expansive, 37,000-acre parcel of land located in Greenough, Montana, which is located 35 miles east of Missoula, Montana. Paws Up Ranch is a working cattle and bison ranch and is also home to The Resort at Paws Up—a critically acclaimed luxury resort.

Paws Up History

Paws Up Ranch LLC is a land-management, ranching operation and a hospitality company with a focus on developing and managing one-of-a-kind luxury experiential resorts.

- 1806: Captain Meriwether Lewis of the Lewis & Clark expedition reportedly climbed Sentinel Rock (also known as "Lookout Rock") at Paws Up, looking for the Marias River on his return trip from the Pacific Ocean.
- 1882: Homesteader Henry Martin staked his claim for gold mining on the area now known as Martin Pasture, just a short distance from the Cook Shack.
- 1908: Benjamin and Ollie Morris built the Morris Ranch House and opened what would be a long string of cattle ranches on the property. (The Morris Ranch land is now part of Paws Up, and the historic home was completely renovated to become part of The Resort at Paws Up's accommodations.)
- 1915: Paul Greenough buys the adjoining property, raising sheep and other livestock and constructs several of the buildings that are still used today at The Resort.
- 1927–1965: The land changes hands several times, but remains a commercial cattle ranch.
- 1965: Brothers Jon and Land Lindbergh, sons of the celebrated aviator, buy the ranch and operate the Lindbergh Cattle Company, raising Herefords for 21 years.
- 1986–1997: Two more owners operate cattle ranches before Dave and Nadine Lipson purchase the property and name it Paws Up, after a dog's jovial "paws up" greeting. They build more than 150,000 square feet of new structures, add 100 miles of new fencing and turn Paws Up into one of the top 10 Black Angus seed stock operations in Montana.
- 2003: After three years of successful ranching and hosting friends and guests on their breathtaking 37,000-acre property, the Lipsons decide to open a resort to share their love for Montana.
- June 4, 2005: The Resort at Paws Up opens!
